DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Ichikawa et al (EP 1,068,883). Regarding claims 1, 2, 5, and 6, Ichikawa discloses a golf ball comprising a core and at least one cover layer (abstract). The cover layer is formed of a rubber composition comprising at least 40% of cis-1,4 structure polybutadiene rubber (2, line 46), at least 5 parts of methacrylic acid (2, lines 53-55), at least 5 parts of a metal oxide (3, lines 1-2), and at least 0.1 part of a polymerization initiator (3, lines 12-15). Applicant discloses the cover of the present invention may be made from the core material (polybutadiene), therefore the maximum load value claimed by applicant is considered obvious over the Ichikawa. Regarding claim 2, Ichikawa discloses a cover hardness of at least 65 JIS-C (41 Shore D) and a cover thickness of at from 0.5 to 3.5 mm (4, line 51). Regarding claims 3 and 4, the core may be one or more layer and is made from a cis, 1-4 polybutadiene. Regarding claims 7 and 8, Ichikawa discloses a cover hardness of at least 65 JIS-C (41 Shore D) and a cover thickness of at from 0.5 to 3.5 mm (4, line 51). Since the materials for the cover layers are equivalent the maximum load values are also considered equivalent.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 12-8-04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues Ichikawa fails to disclose or suggest the maximum load of the cover material. Although the prior art does not disclose the properties claimed by applicant the material type appears to be identical to the material disclosed in the instant application. Patentability is based on structure and not properties that are clearly possessed by the prior art and not disclosed. Applicant has not advanced arguments proving the cover material of Ichikawa does not possess the claimed properties. Simply stating the properties are not recognized is not sufficient.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
